Proposed County IT Policy Shut Down by Legislators

By David Propper

A proposed information technology policy for all Putnam County government employees was slammed and stopped during a last minute Rules, Enactment and Intergovernmental Relations meeting last week that led to some of the loudest screaming and shouting heard all year.

The policy has been in the works for roughly a year, deputy county attorney Dan Harvey of the Law Department said, noting most counties in New York have some form of an IT policy that regulates the use of IT equipment to prevent “possible discrimination and illegal conduct” on the IT system and avoid any security breaches by a county employee.

The proposed policy wouldn’t apply to union members because those unions need to negotiate with the county going forward.

“We want to put certain protections in place for people using our system,” Harvey said.

The proposed policy would apply to county employees, contractors, vendors, affiliates, and other third-party vendors with whom the county has a relationship.

As stated, “all communications that relate in any way to the county or reflect on the county, whether verbal or electronic or made on or off duty, must comply with county’s values and expectations.”

Each employee is considered “an ambassador of the county” and even if the employee chooses their password, it doesn’t mean they should expect the material protected behind the password to potentially not be surveilled, including Internet, email, voicemail, telephone, cellphones and personal digital assistant.

“Employees who violate this policy will be subject to appropriate disciplinary and/or legal action, up to and including termination,” part of the policy reads.

Some legislators took great umbrage with the fact that as elected officials they were classified as county employees, none more annoyed than Kevin Wright.

Looking more like a prosecutor treating Harvey as hostile on the witness stand, Wright, Putnam’s former district attorney, attempted to put some “concrete under a policy that is built on quick-sand.” He wanted to know if legislators could be under surveillance and if the legislature in turn could look at the county executive’s administration’s emails.

“We got this resolution a couple hours ago and it’s been in the works for a year and nobody knows a goddamn thing about it for god’s sake,” Wright, who at times was shouting, asserted. “This is absolutely asinine. I seldom have been so perplexed by the absolute folly of this kind of thing to try to stick this in the face of the legislature.”

Harvey said the supervisor who has administrative authority over an employee continued on page 8

Sheriff Urges Vigilance as Vehicle Break-ins Rise

Car thieves in Putnam County are treating themselves to a very nice holiday season.

More than 20 thefts of property from parked cars have been recorded the past few weeks in Southeast and Putnam Valley, according to the county Sheriff’s Office, including two cars that were stolen.

The majority of incidents stem from owners leaving their car doors unlocked, according to the sheriff’s department. Property stolen includes cash and credit cards, GPS devices and other electronics and other miscellaneous items.

Two cars were even robbed in Southeast. One grand larceny occurred on Dec. 14 and the other on Dec. 16. Both vehicles were left unlocked, though one was eventually recovered in Westchester County where it was abandoned.

Sheriff Don Smith urged residents to lock their cars at all times, including in their driveway. Smith added having a car alarm and turning on security lighting in driveways at night also combat thieves up to no good. Any suspicious activity should be reported to the sheriff’s office.

“Thieves can be opportunistic and an unlocked car with valuable visible inside offers an alluring target to thieves,” said Smith. “At this time of year, especially, thieves know that people might leave Christmas presents or holiday shopping money in their cars and so the thieves are on the lookout for cars left unlocked.”

Putnam Hospital Volunteer Reaches 7,500 Hours of Service

Putnam Hospital Center volunteer Terry Scrivani (above and on left receiving flowers from Michelle Piazza of volunteer and pastoral services at Putnam Hospital) recently completed 7,500 hours of volunteer work at the hospital, equaling 1,000 full-time days of service. Scrivani, 86, began as a Putnam Hospital Center volunteer in 1995 after retiring from the cashier department at the Foundation for Christian Living in Pawling. “Terry is well-known and well loved by many of our staff and visitors,” said Piazza. Scrivani had surgery on her foot at Putnam Hospital Center and had such a positive experience, she said, that she wanted to give back to the facility. “All the people in the Ambulatory Surgery Unit were so good to me that I said, ‘When I retire, I’m going to volunteer here.’” Scrivani said she had a goal to reach 7,500 hours of service. A plaque with her name on it for reaching that many hours hangs in the hospital. “It feels wonderful,” she said, adding that she doesn’t plan to stop anytime soon. “As long as my health continues, I’ll be there.”

The Mahopac Central School District will move forward with a plan to make significant upgrades to its technology infrastructure and supply Google Chromebooks for hundreds of its students.

Board of Education members passed a resolution accepting the New York State Smart Schools Bond Act investment plan at a special Dec. 21 meeting at Mahopac Falls Elementary School.

The state allotment for the Mahopac district is $3.1 million, $200,000 of which will be used to immediately purchase 540 touchscreen Chromebooks, laptops built on Google's chrome operating system that make heavy use of cloud-based programs, and 18 storage and charging carts. The district will use the remaining grant money to upgrade internet capabilities and install new security doors and security cameras over the next two years.

The district is moving toward use of the Google Classroom programs cloud-based programs used by teachers across the country for classroom instruction, testing and communication. Teachers will undergo training for the system in the coming months.

Mahopac Superintendent of Schools Dennis Creedon said the bond would help the district get up to speed with necessary technology, and would not cost the taxpayers anything.

“We do not have certain infrastructure improvements that we need if we’re really going to advance technology. If our high school was to have kids use our Wi-Fi all at once, the system would fail. If you’re trying to show a video, it will start and stop, depending on how many people are on.”

Creedon said the new Google Classroom software will give teachers tools to make teaching to technology-oriented young people easier.

“We’re not going to change teaching or learning to the point that we’re not going to have great teachers in our schools or have computers teaching our kids. Our goal is to have totally tech-savvy educators who know how to engage young people and turn them on to learning.”

Board members approved the bond just prior to a presentation by Galit Price of Southern Westchester BOCES on the district’s current technology status and improvement plans for the near future.

Price gave a rundown of current district IT initiatives, such as Infinite Campus, the district’s new online help desk system installed this past summer.

Going forward, the district was looking to upgrade the internet speed from 200 megabytes per second to 500 megabytes per second, she said. The three elementary schools and middle school have all been recently upgraded to AC technology, with the high school next on the list.

“They will be upgraded to AC 2, and that will increase the capacity to up to four times what we have right now,” Price said.

The Monday meeting, which began more than 45 minutes after the slated 7:30 start time, was scarcely attended. Just three residents showed up for the public hearing, which was help after the resolution was passed.

Residents who spoke voiced concerns over privacy and worried that student data could be shared with third parties, and that the new technology would be used to implement the controversial Common Core testing.

However, board members assured them they had already looked into concerns over privacy and data sharing, and that the closed cloud system kept all information within the district. Board president Michael Sclafani said the bond was focused helping students prepare for a technology-driven workforce.

“I can’t think of a job today that doesn’t use some level of technology,” he said. “We need to get technology into the kids hands as soon as possible.”

Mahopac School Board Approves $3.1 Million Technology Grant

Mahopac Board of Education Members approved the acceptance of a $3.1 million state grant to fund technology upgrades at a Dec. 21 meeting.

Q: Can surgery really solve my problem?
A: It can. Your orthopedic surgeon will explore your options with you, and the two of you can decide on the best approach. The good news is that the surgical solutions for back pain are continuously advancing. One exciting development used at Northern Westchester Hospital is direct lateral fusion, which can address back abnormalities that cause chronic pain.

As “lateral” implies, the surgeon works from the side of the patient. This advanced technique is much less invasive and allows us to achieve amazing results, especially in scoliosis patients. The incision is much smaller and we don’t have to fuse as many vertebrae to get great results. It’s often a simpler, more effective treatment, and patients are usually up and moving after one day (instead of three to four) and typically leave the hospital after three to four days versus six to seven. The vast majority of patients are much happier and back to their normal activities much sooner.

* American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons

Q: What if that doesn’t work?
A: Next steps may include prescription pain medications and possibly steroid injections to reduce swelling in your back. You may also be referred for imaging to determine whether abnormalities in your spine are causing your pain. If your back pain doesn’t get better using these more conservative methods, your doctor may refer you to an orthopedic surgeon to determine if surgery can help. Sometimes abnormalities in the vertebrae or the soft disc that cushions your spine can press on spinal nerves and cause pain or numbness in your legs and make it difficult to walk or stand. In such cases, surgery can help immensely.

Q: My back is killing me — what can I do?
A: You’ll be happy to hear that most people recover from back pain within a few days just by taking it easy, continuing gentle activity, and using over-the-counter pain medicine such as naproxen or ibuprofen to ease their pain. If the pain doesn’t resolve itself within a week or so, your doctor may suggest physical therapy where you can learn stretches and ways of moving that will ease the strain on your back.

January:
The New Year started with a high-profile termination when former Bureau of Emergency Services commissioner Adam Stiebeling was released of his duties by County Executive MaryEllen Odell. The dismissal of Stiebeling, who followed in the footsteps of former commissioner and now the late Bob McMahon, set off a firestorm in the emergency services community concerned about the next steps for the bureau. Stiebeling would eventually sue the county for his job back, but lost on a technicality...For the second straight year, Legislator Carl Albano got the nod as chairman of the county Legislature and Legislator Ginny Nacerino earned the vice-chairmanship for two years in row...Always lauded as a top tier asset to the county, former Putnam Economic Development Corporation president Meghan Taylor departed from her position to take a job with New York State's Empire State Development. It took almost all year to fill her old position...Once again, allegations of racism by the Mahopac basketball program surfaced from a Jan.7 game between Mahopac and Carmel. It was alleged that “racially charged language” was directed at a Carmel player by a Mahopac player. Former Mahopac school chief Brian Monahan ended up suspending the player the rest of the season, though the punishment was said to be because of sharp elbow the Mahopac player threw during that same game. An appeal filed by the player was denied by the Mahopac school board and the player’s career came to an end...At the state level, former NYS Assembly Speaker Sheldon Silver was arrested and charged with corruption. He later would be found guilty.

February:
Although it didn’t occur in Putnam and no county residents were killed, six lives were lost in the deadliest train crash in the MTA’s history. The train line does reach up to Patterson and Southeast, but on this day it never let all its passengers off. The crash occurred when a vehicle entered a railroad crossing, but wasn’t able to get off the tracks before the train barreled in, causing wreckage that caught nationwide attention and grief. The crash site was located in Chappaqua, which NYS Senator Terrence Murphy represents. He called for all levels of government to look into ways to ensure this type of tragedy never happens again... Carmel school chief Dr. James Ryan announce his retirement at the Feb. 3 board meeting...In probably the most heated vote by a local municipality this year, the Southeast town board voted 3-1 to approve a zoning change for the proposed Crossroads 312 project. Councilwoman Lynne Eckardt was absent, but would have voted against it along with Supervisor Tony Hay. The project would bring a hotel and large retail along Route 312. Many residents fought the project because of traffic, safety, and infrastructure concerns and hurting the rural character of the town. Proponents of the project claim it will bring the first hotel to Putnam and secure jobs and sales tax revenue in the county.

March:
It’s been talked about for years, but Carmel town board members finally and formally requested the county conduct a feasibility study into merging all law enforcement agencies into one police force, including the Putnam sheriff’s department. That letter would make waves across the county and lead to apparent tension between Carmel and the county executive administration in the months ahead... After Adam Stiebeling was booted from his EMS commissioner job, Odell named a successor: Tony Sutton, who previously worked for New York State and Westchester. She made the announcement during her State of the County address. The move was pending legislative approval, which took longer than anyone would have liked because of the ongoing litigation with Stiebeling...

April:
It seemed to take forever, but the Mahopac school system finally found their next superintendent of schools when it named Dr. Dennis Creedon to take over. Creedon, who is in the middle of his first school year, came from the Philadelphia school system. For Mahopac, it took almost two years to hire a new permanent school chief... In Carmel, the town had the honor of being named the first Purple Heart Town in Putnam. Other towns soon followed Carmel’s lead... Putnam school parents in droves opted their children (grades 3-8) out of much maligned state exams connected to the Common Core... In a clash that included wild claims of misconduct, the now former county health commissioner, Dr. Allen Beals accused Putnam Valley Supervisor Bob Tendy of raising the tax assessment on his Putnam Valley property by $500,000 because Beals closed down Spur Beach in town. What ensued was a war of words between the two where Tendy questioned if Beals was holding events on his farm that were not permitted by the zoning. Eventually, Beals got his assessment cut down, but solid proof of his strong accusations were never founded.

May:
In one of the most incredible stories of the year, a Mahopac woman who lived on Ann Drive shot and killed an intruder who used to be an ex-boyfriend after he entered her house. The woman, never identified, struggled to get the gun away from Philip Miraglia of Mahopac and shot him in what Carmel Police asserted was self-defense... With the old Carmel school chief stepping aside, the Carmel Board of Education named Andy Irvin the new superintendent of schools. Irvin has been with the district for years as an administrator...In another example of New York State swimming in corrupt politics, former NYS senate majority leader Dean Skelos was arrested and brought up on corruption charges. He would later be found guilty...EMS Commissioner Tony Sutton was finally named to his current position by the county Legislature...With little stress, each and every school district in Putnam got their budget approved by voters... Officially announcing his long shot bid for president, Putnam's own George Pataki entered the 2016 race for the White House. Pataki lives in Garrison and was a three-term Republican governor of New York. His wife, Libby, is the tourism director for the county, but has been on leave ever since her husband announced. As of this week, Pataki was apparently still running, though his poll numbers are almost as dreadful as the average person reading this newspaper.

June:
One of the most inspiring and heroic actions in Putnam came from man's best friend when Brewster based guide dog Figo saved his owner, Brewster resident Audrey Stone, from further injury when a vehicle hit her. The news spread across the nation and even caught international attention. According to reports, Figo leaped in front of the vehicle and absorbed some of the hit leading to a fractured leg and lacerations. Stone, who is legally blind, suffered a broken ankle, elbow, and ribs and head wound, but it could have been a lot of worse if not for Figo. The dog and owner were happily reunited later this year.

July:
The proposed redevelopment at Butterfield in Cold Spring has been a lightning rod for controversy for years, but a slew of elected officials in early July celebrated the groundbreaking and naming of buildings, parks and roads, including a senior center that seniors in the area have long fought for. After the groundbreaking, developer Paul Guillaro even admitted he didn't think it would ever reach this point of rejoicing. Though the original senior center was supposed to be located in the new building, it appears now it'll be situated at the adjacent Lahey Pavilion. A lease between the county and Guillaro was agreed on in November.

August:
Outside of a red-hot summer between district attorney candidates Adam Levy, the incumbent, and Bob Tendy, the challenger, the summer was a rather sleepy one in Putnam until August. The indictment of former sheriff investigator Pat Castaldo was tossed after he was accused of putting a shackled prisoner in a chokehold and beating him. Castaldo was among the highest ranking sheriff officials in the department until he resigned after revelations came about that he allegedly mistreated that prisoner who went for former sheriff official Gerald Schramek's gun in Carmel town hall...Mahopac mourned the loss of 17-year-old Hannah Mikus who died suddenly from an unexplained illness. Mahopac student and friend of Hannah, Stefani Ferrari said, "Without Hannah the days won't seem as bright and the nights will seem even darker."...Another tragedy that struck the Hamlet of Mahopac came when Sean Callahan, a well-known and courageous young man, succumbed to cancer. Callahan, who was only 12, raised more than $100,000 for Relay For Life earlier that year, a worldwide mark that impressed, but didn't surprise anyone that knew him. His father, Dan, described him as someone who was all about hope...A new hockey team, the Brewster Bulldogs, came to Putnam County. Currently, they're in the middle of their inaugural season at the Brewster Ice Arena.

Even though he was in office for eight years and had unlimited money to spend, Levy couldn’t overcome allegations of misconduct and scandal as he fell to Tendy badly. October:
A story that will surely continue into the New Year is the ongoing probe into the missing millions of the Mahopac Volunteer Fire Department, in which revelations of the alleged embezzlement came to light during the early part of the month. As much as $5.4 million is said to be missing from the department’s funds, leading to fury from residents directed at those in the Mahopac department. One name that keeps coming up is former treasurer Michael Klein who has since resigned. Klein was the treasurer for more than ten years and owns Buckshollow Emergency Equipment. A ramification of the investigation is the Carmel town board cut the department’s budget request by more than 30 percent for 2016…

A positive note from a fire department came when the Brewster Volunteer Fire Department welcomed a piece of 9/11 steel — the last piece being given out — from ground zero of the World Trade Center. Honored during a ceremony to usher in the steel was former Brewster resident and firefighter Glenn Bisogno, who went down to the city after the attacks to help in the aftermath of the wreckage. He died last summer due to illness connected to the conditions down there…At the end of the month, a split county Legislature adopted the 2016 county budget proposed by County Executive MaryEllen Odell. The proposal that led to the division and outcry was forcing county retirees to pay more for their health insurance. As a retiree’s pension went higher, the more money they had to pay into their health provided by the county under the new proposal. Despite intense protests by the CSEA union and hundreds coming out to complain, it didn’t change the minds of five legislators that voted the budget through.

Bob Tendy completed his quest to become district attorney by beating Adam Levy again. As Tendy said, “the little person with no money can do a lot if he really want to and tries very hard.” A lesson to residents that their vote counts is no more indicative than the Patterson supervisor race where Republican Rich Williams won by only 17 votes to top Democrat Andy Falk…A former Carmel police officer, Richard O’Keefe, was charged with aggravated vehicular manslaughter after he allegedly drove drunk and hit a car on Route 6, killing a woman in the other vehicle. The study will be ready by mid-February though Carmel officials aren’t happy a graduate student is doing the study.

December:

NYS Senator Sue Serino perhaps got the worst press of the year when she demanded a constituent from Poughkeepsie not videotape an informal forum held at Putnam Valley town hall. The constituent who said his name was Mert Melfa refused at first, but he eventually agreed and left after he was threaten with arrest by a Putnam County Sheriff deputy. A day later, Sheriff Don Smith said the man should’ve been allowed to videotape, though Serino stuck by her request…The year in county government ended the way it started with another department head getting the pink slip. Dr. Allen Beals has been put on administrative leave by the county executive’s office, which led to accusations being tossed around on both sides.

Proposed County IT Policy Shut Down by Legislators

would have the ability to request certain IT information concerning the individual under scrutiny, similar to the regular disciplinary system already in place.

“I don’t think the point of the policy is that someone’s going to be consistently looking at (emails),” Harvey said. “It would come about because there’s some sort of suspicion.”

While Legislator Dini LoBue said she supports a strong IT policy and secure network, a lot of the policy is ambiguous. LoBue questioned if the county executive administration would be the office to enforce the policy when the legislative branch is suppose to be an equal partner.

She also questioned if the policy would give authority to the county to look an employee’s personal computer or cell phone if the county perceived that person to be in breach of the proposed policy.

Legislator Roger Gross said the crux of the concern for legislators is if the county executive’s administration could “peak” into emails that are between two lawmakers.

Legislator Ginny Nacerino spoke in support of the policy, calling it “long overdue” and that elected officials should be held to the same standard and policy as everyone else within county government. She stressed county business should be done on county equipment and county email.

As a longtime Brewster schools employee, Nacerino said most public entities have strict IT policies to stop “misuse or abuse” and employers can monitor what an employee’s online activity within the building.

“I think we’re sort of thinking that Big Brother is watching and we’re just going to arbitrarily read each other’s emails and snoop on each other,” Nacerino said.

“Which is purely not the intent here,” Legislator Carl Albano said he thought the policy should be voted on that night and if changes needed to be made, lawmakers could examine that going forward. Albano said he views himself as a county employee because he collects a county paycheck. He called the policy a “common sense thing.”

“In my emails, everyone is welcome to look at them,” Albano said. “I don’t think it would be appropriate for people from the administration to look at them, but I don’t think anybody would.”

Legislator Joe Castellano, who works for Westchester County, noted Westchester has an IT policy in place.

“The big concern today is the fact can someone else can read your email,” Castellano said. “And I think that’s a legitimate concern.”

Rules Committee Chairwoman and Legislator Toni Addonizio eventually tabled it because “at this point it doesn’t make sense. We have not had the chance to thoroughly vet this. I don’t even know how it’s written.”

Metro North or not, we are paying for it state roads and bridges. Whether we use years of neglect when we drive on our roads and bridges. Senator Sue Serino called on Governor Andrew Cuomo to make our crumbling infrastructure a real priority. It was at that time that the State enacted an MTA five-year capital plan without funding a plan for the State's roads and bridges. Since that time, it is estimated that funding for our transit system has outpaced an investment in the State's transportation infrastructure by $6 billion. Since 2011, those students have been coming to him.

For more than 20 years, George Krzyzewski used to travel around the area giving music lessons to a wide net of students. Since 2011, those students have been coming to him. George and Lauren Krzyzewski opened up The Music Cottage in Brewster close to five years ago and since then, have only seen a steady incline of students attending the main street location. Offering tutelage and expertise for various instruments and levels, The Music Cottage is the sweetest sounding business on the block.

"He was reaching a point where he was tired of having students one place, one day and different place, another day," his wife and co-owner Lauren said. "(This is) something we always talked about doing."

The Krzyzewskis have twelve teachers from different music backgrounds and offer summer programs, private lessons, workshops, and showcases. Though the cottage looks quint from the street, it has five music rooms, as well as a small section for musical items aimed at students for sale. When the cottage first opened, it had about 40 students already lined up to take lessons there that George had tutored. Now, there are about 200 young musicians that walk through the door during the year.

"It sort of evolved organically," Lauren said. George and Lauren both take care of certain sides of the business. George, who is a guitar and bass player, handles the music side of things and Lauren, a former project developer and marketer, handles the business side of things.

The couple's son and daughter also get involved with The Music Cottage at various points. Lauren notes how much fun it is to see the entire family part of the business in one form or another.

Students eventually and hopefully build up to a show as they progress. Each student must be studying for six months to participate in a showcase. Recently, many students performed at Daryl's House in Pawling, which is owned by Rock N' Roll great Daryl Hall, who was part of Hall and Oates.

"We're really into getting kids to perform, to play music with others," Lauren said. "We feel like that's a part of playing music, not just going into your lesson and playing in your room every week." Finding kids interested in music isn't very difficult. The area has a strong emphasis on performing arts and music, but before The Music Cottage, a Brewster Chamber of Commerce member, there was nothing else really in Brewster for rising musicians outside of the music department at Brewster High School. Instruments like guitar, bass, drum set, piano, and a couple others aren't offered in school.

"We have kids that either want a little extra help with an instrument that they're studying in school or they're more advance and they'd like to take it a little further," Lauren said. The Music Cottage is the sweetest sounding business on the block.

"Frankly, the people of Dutchess and Putnam Counties are tired of taking a back seat to the needs of the MTA," said Serino. "It doesn't take much to see the years of neglect when we drive on our state roads and bridges. Whether we use Metro North or not, we are paying for it in our gas taxes and motor vehicle fees and it's high time, we were treated fairly in addressing the needs of our ailing infrastructure."

Serino Calls on Cuomo to Provide Sufficient Funds for Local Infrastructure

Governor Andrew Cuomo recently announced an agreement that the MTA five-year capital program would receive roughly $6 billion in state funding, while remaining silent on the growing infrastructure needs of our Upstate roads and bridges.

Surrounded by supporters for “parity” in funding for the New York State Dedicated Highway and Bridge Trust Fund, Senator Serino last week called on Governor Cuomo to make our crumbling infrastructure a priority and include in his Executive Budget, an equitable level of funding for the deteriorating roads and bridges.

"To leave the rest of the state behind while funding mass transit is not only unfair, but foolish," Serino continued. "With each passing year, more bridges are ranked in unsafe or deteriorating condition and it is reported that more than 60 percent of our roads are in need of repair or reconstruction."

"An investment in our roads and bridges is an investment in our economy, in our safety; and in our future," Serino continued to state. "It's unreasonable to ask taxpayers to continue to pay for the Metropolitan Transit Authority, while conditions of the roads and bridges they must travel on every day remain dangerously neglected. It is time for Governor Cuomo to make Upstate infrastructure a real priority."

Taconic Overpass in Putnam Valley Puts Students’ Lives at Risk

The Putnam Valley Board of Education at their Business Meeting of December 17, passed the following resolution:
WHEREAS approximately 300 students on 36 bus runs travel through the dangerous crossing on the Taconic Parkway at Pudding Street each day, or 54,000 individual student crossings per school year; and
WHEREAS, for over a decade the Board of Education of the Putnam Valley Central School District has attempted to persuade New York State to create safe passage for our students; and
WHEREAS, we are fearful that a dangerous and tragic outcome could occur if an alternate way across the Taconic State Parkway is not designed and constructed immediately.
NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Putnam Valley Central School District Board of Education hereby calls upon the State of New York, in order to protect the children of our District, to immediately begin the process of constructing a way to provide safe passage across the Taconic State Parkway at the Pudding Street interchange. After decades of promises that have not been fulfilled, we continue to fear for the well-being of students who are transported daily to and from our schools.

Police Services in Kent Should Remain Unchanged

I am an 18 year resident of the Town of Kent, I, like many Kent residents, am very happy with the services provided us by the Kent Police Department. I have followed recent stories regarding the Carmel Town Board struggles with their growing annual budget, followed by those duties. I, for one, want no part of department consolidation study. Rather than beginning to make hard choices, such as cutting the rate of growth of their budget, they have decided that it would be nice to share law enforcement costs with the rest of the county. After all, why shouldn’t Brewer, Kent and other towns in the county help Carmel fund their department that they can’t afford to do themselves? They could do what Putnam Valley did and eliminate their overly costly PD and have the Putnam County Sheriffs Department take over those duties. I, for one, want no part of changing the Town of Kent PD. Perhaps the Carmel Town Board should be paying similar resolution was passed on February 21, 2013, to no avail.

THEREFORE, we must plead for an urgent response from our local, regional, state and federal leaders in order that we fulfill our responsibility to provide for the health and safety of our students.

Locally Crafted KAS Krupnikas a Top 100 Spirit for 2015

KAS Krupnikas, a small-batch spiced honey liqueur made in Mahopac, NY has been included in Wine Enthusiast's Top 100 Spirits for 2015. The inclusion by the esteemed publication comes on the heels of receiving a high scoring 92 from the magazine back in October of this year.

KAS Krupnikas is a spirit crafted with New York State honey and a combination of 10 spices to create an 80 proof liqueur that is popular with the Lithuanian community wherein the recipe originates as well as all spirit enthusiasts. KAS Spirits recently received praise from the New York Times, revealed a new label, and released multiple size offerings of their popular spirit into the New York market.

“I’ve believed since Day One that we have a beautiful and distinctive product,” says Co-Founder, Kestutis Katina. “We are steadfast in our high quality and continue to craft everything by hand, from zesting lemons to labeling bottles. It’s not always easy but to receive this honor from a respected source reinforces that we are creating something really special.”

The holidays and winter months are a premiere time for KAS Krupnikas as it’s warming spice notes and locally sourced honey make for an easy hot toddy. The company introduced the 100ml on December 1, almost instantly creating a demand for the small stocking-stuffer sized bottles.

“At recent events in Manhattan and Brooklyn, customers were clamoring for the new 375ml and 100ml size bottles as perfect holiday gifts,” says Marushka Osman. "It’s a more interesting and unique gift to bring to dinner parties than the usual bottle of wine or champagne. Traditionally a toasting spirit, it is ideal for celebrations but also versatile in a multitude of cocktails. The individuality and handcrafted nature of the spirit make it an exceptional choice for those looking to stand out.”

KAS Krupnikas is currently available at fine bars, retailers, and online. It is being distributed directly by KAS Spirits, LLC and is available to licensed businesses in the state of New York. You can learn more about KAS Krupnikas by visiting www.kasspirits.com or emailing them at info@kasspirits.com.

Seussical Jr. Auditions at Seven Star School of Performing Arts
Seven Star School of Performing Arts is holding auditions for their spring musical, Seussical Jr., Saturday January 9 by appointment. Auditions are open to kids, ages 5-18. Rehearsals will be scheduled on select Saturdays and Sundays at 509 Route 312 in Brewster. Performances are May 13 and 14. Horton the Elephant, the Cat in the Hat, and all of your favorite Dr. Seuss characters spring to life onstage in Seussical Jr., a fantastical musical extravaganza! To transport audiences from the jungle of Nool to the Circus McGurkus, the Cat in the Hat, our narrator, tells the story of Horton, an elephant who discovers a speck of dust containing tiny people called the Whos, including Jojo, a Who child who gets in trouble for thinking too many “thinks.” Horton's challenge is twofold: not only must he protect the Whos from a world of naysayers and dangers, but he must also guard an abandoned egg that's been left in his care by the irresponsible Mayzie La Bird. Although Horton faces ridicule, danger, kidnapping, and a trial, the intrepid Gertrude McFuzz never loses faith in him. Ultimately, the powers of friendship, loyalty, family, and community are challenged and emerge triumphant!

While there is no cost to audition, if cast, there is a participation fee. Visit their website for information on what to prepare for the audition.
To schedule your audition and for additional information, visit www.SevenStarSchool.com, email info@sevenstarschool.com or call (845) 728-0728 for more information.
More Living Using Less Space With Convertible Furniture

In the early days of our marriage, my wife and I lived in a small New York City studio apartment and we had to make the most of what space we had. So we purchased a convertible sofa, a Lawson-style, upholstered in red velvet, and had that as our regular bed. It followed us through many moves. The daily ritual of folding the sofa up again early in the morning became ingrained in us.

Eventually, we settled into our home in the suburbs and acquired a queen-sized bed in its own bedroom. Our old convertible sofa became part of our living room furniture. We imagined that it could still be unfolded for our relatives to sleep on, and that as our regular bed. The sofa was opened for company only rarely, mainly on Christmas Eve when relatives visiting from a distance stayed over.

After many years we finally brought it to the curb and replaced it with a more spacious guest bedroom with its own bed, which we felt fortunate enough to have for our relatives when sleeping over. There is no doubt that the fold-out sofa is the classic choice for temporary guest bedroom, although many of us dread spending a night over that infamous metal bar that runs across the width of the mattress. Fortunately, a little research on the Apartment Therapy or Consumers Digest websites can give you advice for choosing the newest comfortable brands.

One alternative to the fold-out is a daybed with a slide-out trundle underneath, turning a sofa into two side-by-side twin beds. Another is the ingenious sofa bunk bed, which unfolds upward, revealing easily-positioned ladder rungs and safety rails. For the more experimental, many manufacturers offer geometric foam pieces that can be rearranged like building blocks into a sofa, a daybed or a low table with extra blocks on the floor for seating. I'm not sure how much I would enjoy picking myself up off the floor after sleeping on that foam, but the younger or more limber among us may want to try it.

Once you know where your guests will be sleeping, it's time to find them a place to sit and eat. The most traditional way to expand your dining table is to buy one that accommodates extra panels in the center, and perhaps unfold a card table for the overflow.

But if your space is too small for a dedicated dining table, there are still alternatives. One of my favorites is the fold-down table, where one edge is joined to the wall with hinges. When open, the legs unfold down for support, and when closed, the legs and eating surface lie flat against the wall. Some models, available online for the DIYer, reveal medicine cabinet-sized storage when the table is folded down. Other versions, such as those made by IvyDesign, turn the underside of the table into a framed work of art once it is folded up.

Even small furniture items can give you more space when you need it. Not only can sets of end tables nest into each other, but with design ingenuity even chairs and coffee tables can be stored in a similar way.

For the ultimate in space efficiency, one can marvel at the highly-engineered components that make up accordion-style apartments, where sliding and pivoting structures transform one room into three or more. The traditional Murphy bed, for example, not only folds up into the wall, but it might pivot to reveal bookcases and a fold-down table on the other side. What looks like a solid wall might easily slide forward, similar to the mobile shelving in museum archives, to create a new mini-room with bunk beds or other storage that unfold from the newly revealed wall.

While I don't see myself returning to the days of folding my bed away every morning, I can certainly handle stacking a few coffee tables, matryoshka doll-style, after company leaves. Even this lifetime suburban homeowner can adapt to using space in a new way.

Spin City!

Putnam Valley Tops Its Nemeses, Defeats Woodlands, 51-41

Putnam Valley senior F/C Joey Spinola is harassed by a Woodlands defender in the host Tigers’ 51-41 triumph of the two-time reigning Section 1 Class B champion Falcons last Tuesday when the state-ranked (No.14) Tigers knocked off the nemeses that ended their season two years in a row in the Final 4 at the Westchester County Center, including the 2014 sectional championship. see Boys’ Hoops Notebook
HENDRICK HUDSON has had some really decent hoopers over the years (a bunch form the ’80s–’90s), but this Jesse Breeding kid is making a name for himself. Averaging 16 PPG and eight caroms per go, Breeding has been a monster in Hen Hud’s last two wins. The standard double-double in this neck of the woods is typically between 12-14 points and 10-12 rebounds, but over two of the last four games – victories over Brewster and Edgemont -- Breeding’s numbers are exceedingly atypical.

The Concordia-bound swingman went for 17 points and 16 rebounds in a 54-45 triumph of Brewster last Tuesday and posted one of the gaudier stat lines of the 2015-16 season when he dropped 23 points and hauled in 15 boards in a 64-44 win over Edgemont earlier in the week.

He added another 27 points in a 51-47 loss to Rye, a team that could be standing in the Sailors’ way if they intend to make Final 4 hay this March.

“Jesse has been playing hard and we’ve asked him to be assertive in the rebounding game,” said Sailor skipper Jordan Hirsch, a 2003 Hen Hud Grad. “He is extremely athletic and has played very aggressive, which has really gotten him to produce some nice numbers.”

Those are the kind of numbers that might lead the Sailors (5-3) to their first County Center visit since a 1991 playdate set up by none other than Chris Kelly, Ted Leshinski, Chris Talma, Tim McNulty and Keith Friedman, plus bench sparkplugs Will and Slack Mauro.

Those are some vintage names in the Sailor annals, but if Breeding can carry the 2016 Sailors to the County Center he might be mentioned in the same breath with some of the greatest ballers in Hen Hud history, including but not limited to the legends they still speak of at Fulgum’s Bar: As in guys like Steve Leshinski (circa 1987), a 6’11” center who went on to play D-I at Bucknell; cats like Nelson Keels, Greg Economou (played at UConn), Chris Flink, Kurt Thomas, JJ “Thrill” Hill and the program’s only two 1,000-point scorers, Bruce Fulgum and Seth Heaton. Ol’ Bruce will still talk your ear off if you pull up a stool and get him started (Happy New Year, pal!)

Breeding will likely tap out around 800 points, but if he gets Hen Hud to County Center for the first time since that ’91 semifinal loss to Peekskill; he’s in conversation with the group above, but those are some serious ballers. We’ll see what Breeding’s Sailors are made of when they come out of the break and the league slate heats up in earnest with battles against Panas, Ossining and Lakeland, but the No.4 playoff seed is likely there for the taking behind state-ranked favorites like Tappan Zee (No.13), Lourdes (No.23) and Byram Hills (HM). Long way to, though...

CLASS B

There was no mention of vengeance last Tuesday night, not so much as an utterance of payback...

PUTNAM VALLEY (8-1) simply wanted to continue to take care of business before, during and after its 51-41 triumph of reigning two-time Section 1 Class B champion Woodlands, the same Falcons (0-5) that had ended the Tigers’ season in each of the past two years in the sectional finals and semifinals, respectively.

“We weren’t thinking about the last two years,” said Putnam Valley senior G Kevin Gallagher, a veteran member of the team since 2013. “We don’t dwell on that. It’s a new year, a new team. Our goal is to get back to the County Center and take care of some unfinished business.”

The state-ranked (No.14) Tigers, so long as they remain focused, are looking like a contender to get back to the Westchester County Center – home of the Section 1 Final 4 – for a fourth-straight year, which was unfathomable just five years ago when the cellar-dwelling Tigers were struggling to make ends meet.

Fast forward to what should be a wild 2016, which gets off to a raucous start when Coach Mike McDonnell’s Tigers visit state-ranked (No.3) Briarcliff right out of the holiday break (January 7th, 4:30 p.m.) in one of the more anticipated games of the regular season. Briarcliff, the 2015 Class B runnerups, will surely expect to represent at the Mecca, and Nanuet (4-3), which took Cliffs into OT, Blind...
Croton’s Eli Reyer is met by the staunch defense of Mahopac’s Aidan Hynes in Tigers’ overtime loss to Indians last Tuesday.

Brook (5-2) and maybe even Ardsley (6-2) and/or Croton (4-3) are also posing as challengers to the Class B Throne Put Valley has never sat upon.

Class B is chock-full-of-interesting this season.

CLASS AA

MAHOPAC saw John Jacklett go off from downtown, nailing five 3’s and a career-best 23 points in a 67-65 win over Class B CROTON last Tuesday. Senior G Christian Donahoe added 19 for the Indians (3-4), who will awake from their New Year break with a high noon tip off against the Class B Thieves.

CARMEL (4-4) used a balanced attack to even its record in a dominant 62-37 defeat of North Salem, doing so behind senior F Matt Haughney’s game-high 20 points last Tuesday. Ram G Ryan Train went for 16 while Ryan Sullivan (10) provided a third double-digit option. Quinn Willman (8) and Brian Harlin (7) were also contributors for the Rams, who expect to be among the league title contenders all taking aim at Lourdes, the pre-season league favorites. We are still waiting for a prime-time W before we shuffle the Rams into our Fab 5 Poll below.

Both Carmel and Mahopac will participate in the 9th annual Putnam Challenge at Carmel this Saturday, which includes: 10:00 a.m. WEBUTUCK vs. MAHOPAC; 12:00 p.m. MAHOPAC vs. PEKSKILL; 2:00 p.m. DOBBS FERRY vs. CROTON; 4:00 p.m. NORTH SALEM vs. MAHOPAC; 6:00 p.m. JOHN JAY CROSS RIVER vs. MAMARONECK; 8:00 p.m. SPRING VALLEY vs. CARMEL.

CHSAA

KENNEDY CATHOLIC, the reigning CHSAA NYC champions, are currently 7-2 overall and 2-0 in league play with wins over Msgr. Farrell and Nazareth. Coach Al Morales’ Gaels only loss came to a hot shooting and well coached Iona Prep club. To date, the state-ranked (No.5) Class A Gaels have won the STOP DWI Holiday Classic in Binghamton, back in early December with wins against Binghamton HS and in the finals against Schalmont High. Malachi de Sousa was MVP of the tourney while Kevin Buron and Al Morales were named to the All-Tournament team.

Charlie Goldenberg (24 points) and Eli Ryder (20) kept the Tigers in the game on a night when Croton forlornly recognized Coach Bill Thom’s induction into the NYS Hall of Fame. Mahopac graduated two starters and impact players – Alayne Felix and Caroline Horan – from the 2014-15 team so how would the Indians react to their departures?

Six wins in its first nine games has Mahopac ahead of schedule as it prepares for league season when school resumes in January. Add in the addition of four freshmen and one sophomore to the varsity team and it’s easy to understand Mahopac’s delight.

Mahopac closed out December with a 56-46 victory over Fox Lane as junior Amanda Geyer led the way with 14 points.

“We feel that it’s a good start and now we just have to keep going forward, not backward,” Geyer said.

Along with Geyer, classmate Carly Pease and senior Tara Ravoli returned for Mahopac. However, incorporating four freshmen and a sophomore into the team was an adjustment.

“We had a rough start with our scrimmages, but that was understandable because with four freshmen and a sophomore, who were new to the team, we hadn’t all played together so we had to get a feel for each other,” Geyer said.

Along with the five new varsity underclassmen, Geyer said the remainder of the team had to raise their level of play.

“We had to step it up and build it up, together,” Geyer said. “We all worked really hard because we love this sport and we are dedicated.”

Mahopac opened the season with a loss to Peekskill. The Indians rebounded to win the Lakeland tournament, then lost to R.C. Ketcham in overtime of the Panas tournament final. Somers dealt Mahopac a second consecutive loss, but the Indians bounced back with consecutive wins.

“Winning the Lakeland tournament definitely boosted our confidence, especially after a tough game against Peekskill,” Geyer said. “After the two losses in a row, it kind of brought us down, but made us come together.

“It was important for us to beat Kennedy and going into the Fox Lane game we felt better about ourselves.”

Geyer, along with Ravoli and Pease, have been instrumental in their underclassmen’s transition to varsity. Geyer said the trio is constantly encouraging the younger players and making sure they are ok.

Mahopac coach Chuck Scozzafava was especially pleased with his team’s performance against Fox Lane.

“We had a good effort,” Scozzafava said. “Our offense is making progress and our defense is coming along nicely. It was a nice team win with 10 girls scoring.”

OSSINING returned to its second home – the Westchester County Center – for the annual Slam-Dunk Challenge.

The Pride walked away with its third title in four years after beating Grand Street Campus, 75-67, then manhandling Albertus Magnus, 66-52. The final score was not indicative of Ossining’s dominance as the Pride led by 22 after three quarters.

Shadeen Samuels was named most valuable player after scoring 33 and 24 points, respectively. Freshman Aubrey Griffin added 21 points and nine assists.

Mahopac’s Amanda Geyer has been a catalyst to the Indians’ hot start this season.

Ossining’s hotshot Gabby Rosenzweig and the Tuskers will prepare for a big test against a vastly improved Fox Lane team on Jan. 5.

Lakeland’s Jordyn Coitino sniped three 3’s in loss to Put Valley.
rebounds against Albertus Magnus. Griffin, who put up 51 points in the team’s last game, against Arlington last Friday, has made the transition from Chicago to Ossining quite swimmingly.

Samuels also finished with six rebounds, five assists and four steals against Albertus Magnus, and the youngsters appear to be handling the “Ossining Way” of doing things under her guidance.

“So far so good, a few bumps along the way but they seem to be getting it,” Ricci said of the rookies. “We passed another test today beating reigning Class A champion. Shadleen has been great. There is a lot of pressure on her playing with three freshmen, but she has done a great job so far. I would like her to be more vocal when things get chaotic and she will with time.”

Ossining trailed by five points, 38-33, at halftime against Grand Street Campus before outscoring the Brooklyn school by 13 in the second half.

The 6-0 Pride travel to Orlando, Florida for three games in the KSA Classic. Ossining opens with St. Thomas More, of Lafayette, La., Tuesday, before beginning their assault on League I-B foes.

LAKELAND went 0 for 2 on the short week. PUTNAM VALLEY rallied to a 46-42 win over Lakeland, then the Hornets ran into a buzzsaw in Pearl River.

“We were leading through the third quarter then struggled offensively when Colleen (Walsh) had to sit with foul trouble in the third and part of the fourth quarters,” Lakeland coach Miranda Lustig said. “Both Colleen and Jordyn Coitino fouled out in the fourth quarter.”

Coitino led Lakeland with 15 points and Walsh finished with eight points.

Putnam Valley was led by senior C Reena Olsen, who had 16 points and 12 rebounds in the win over the Hornets. Alyssa Stockinger chipped in with 11 points after going for a triple double against Croton a week earlier. Stockinger added four rebounds and hit two free throws to seal the win over Lakeland, one of the Valley’s biggest since 2007.

Tiger point guard Maria Tomais added 10 points (2 3’s). Lakeland was led by sharp-shooting Coitino, who hit three 3’s.

Putnam Valley (4-4) faces visiting Pleasantville on Jan. 5th.

WALTER PANAS made a statement in the Panthers’ 69-51 win over reigning Section 1 Class C champion HALDANE last Tuesday. Danielle Merante dropped a game-high 21 points for Panas while Melissa Keefe added 19 points. Haldane’s Missy Lisikatos and Allison Chiera each scored 14 points.

In one of Putnam Valley’s biggest wins in at least eight years, senior center Reena Olsen notched a bountiful double-double, dropping 16 points and snagging 12 rebounds in last Monday’s 46-42 win over visiting Lakeland.
