TILI Shed a Fine Feather in White Plains’ Sustainability Cap

By Pat Casey

The White Plains Take It or Leave It Shed opened for business Saturday at 9 a.m. with a full gathering of people waiting outside for the doors to open. By 10 a.m. most of the items that had been dropped off earlier that same morning were already on their way to new homes – having been identified as “genuine treasure.” One lucky young lady was able to furnish most of her new apartment with furniture that another resident had just replaced with new items.

The transaction took about five minutes according to volunteers working that morning.

The fast flow of items in and out of the TILI Shed is sustainability at its best and one of White Plains DPW’s most heralded programs.

FASNY Protest Intends Strong Message for White Plains Mayor and Council

By Pat Casey

Eight Neighborhood Associations representing the majority of residents and some institutions in the south end of White Plains demonstrated proposed Saturday morning against the planned French American School of New York’s (FASNY) regional school complex on the site of the former Ridgeway Country Club.

The protest brought out over 200 people, carrying signs and placards that spelled out their specific concerns: “Traffic + Pollution = FASNY,” “Save Our Neighborhoods,” “Say No to FASNY,” “Say No to the Shrinking Conservancy,” “Keep the Property on Tax Rolls,” “Hathaway Lane Belongs to the People.”

The protesters walked back and forth in front of White Plains High School across the street from the proposed entrance to the FASNY campus. Cars passing in both directions honked approval throughout.

John Sheehan, president of the Gedney Farms Association says FASNY is the most controversial land use project confronting the City of White Plains in the last 25 years.

During the protest Sheehan told The White Plains Examiner that the purpose of Saturday’s demonstration was to: “Urge

Armenian Genocide Service Calls for Acknowledgement by Turkish Government

By Pat Casey

Friday evening’s ceremony at St. Gregory the Enlightener Armenian Church, White Plains, in recognition of the 100th anniversary of the Armenian Genocide and canonization of the martyrs who perished, was a particularly moving and emotional event. It was attended by the Westchester interfaith community as well as by politicians from local government all the way up to the Congressional level.

The service was punctuated with solemn prayer, haunting hymns and strong statements about the need for acknowledgement by the Turkish government that the Armenian Genocide was organized by the Ottoman Turkish government to ethnically cleanse its territory of the indigenous Armenian population.

A theme of the event was that without acknowledgement there could not be true reconciliation. The descriptions of the atrocities committed then bringing to mind recent atrocities and murders committed in the same part of the world today and reported by news media globally.

RPEA Learns About New TZ Bridge Design’s More Interesting Features

The Retired Public Employees Association of Westchester and Putnam (RPEA) invited Brian Conybeare, Special Advisor for the New NY Bridge Project to speak at their luncheon meeting at Sam’s of Gedney Way in White Plains last week.

As construction of the new Tappan Zee Bridge is underway, Conybeare told the group that the project is on time, on budget and about one third of the way through the process.

“Governor Cuomo put the project on the fast track,” Conybeare explained. “He did this by employing the design-build concept that puts full responsibility on the winning bidder. At the same time, it allows the building of infrastructure to commence while some of the finer design aspects of the bridge can be done during the construction process, thereby saving time.”

Most notably, some of the finer design elements will become public attractions including a pedestrian and bicycle path, complete with observation areas, museum-style exhibits and spectacular views. Landscaping and lighting to feature energy efficient LED technology are also evolving as the project progresses.

The pedestrian/bicycle path will run the entire length of one of the spans. Conybeare explained that designers are now configuring the number of parking spaces that will be needed on each side of the river to accommodate that element as well as where those parking lots should be located.

The overall design incorporates infrastructure for the inclusion of mass transit at a time about 15 years into the future Conybeare explained. When the bridge opens in 2018 it will include Bus Rapid Transit with a dedicated lane to keep commuters moving.

“It was the delay in providing land access and highway construction to include trains on both sides of the Hudson that was holding things up,” Conybeare said. “By focusing just on the bridge construction and not waiting for the train element, the process is much faster. And, the bridge needed to be replaced. It really could not wait,” he added.

The new bridge will have two separate spans each dedicated for travel in one direction, north and south. The space between the two spans would eventually hold the mass-transit component.

Currently, one span is being built to the north of the existing bridge. That will initially be open for travel in both directions as the old bridge is torn down and the second span is built in its place.

The bridge design itself is modern and open and intended to represent the openness of the Hudson River Valley. The design also incorporates anti-icing protection and security elements such as special platforms, security cameras and high-tech fencing and netting to keep people from jumping.

With loans from the federal government and $1.3 billion from a cash settlement that will go to the new bridge, Conybeare said that tolls would not be increased for the foreseeable future.

There also will be no toll plazas to create traffic jams. Drivers can use E-Z Pass or their license plates will be photographed as they go through the gateway and an invoice will be sent to them.

An observation deck to view bridge construction as it continues is opening on the Tarrytown side. Visit NewNYBridge.com for more information.

“This spring is like no other we have seen,” said Master Gardener Nancy Giges. “We are about a month behind weather-wise where we normally would be and we don’t know if plants will catch up. We will have to wait and see.”

The Master Gardeners explained that many people were stopping by to find out when would be the best time to start a garden this year.

EcoNeighbors Yvonne Gumowitz and Carry Kyzivat said they had never seen the TILI Shed more organized.

“It has become a great resource, almost a community hang out,” said Kyzivat, adding that eventually they would like to add some educational programming about sustainability.

“White Plains has a Sustainability Committee that is doing good work but you can’t find out what’s going on because there’s nothing posted on the city’s website. We’d love to see that changed,” the EcoNeighbors members agreed. “White Plains should blow its horn more and tout its community’s involvement in sustainability.”

The TILI Shed program saves White Plains many tons of garbage each year and as it becomes well known that number goes up.

At the end of the season if there are items left over, TILI has a relationship with Furniture Sharehouse to get items distributed to needy families.

For White Plains residents interested in taking advantage of the TILI Shed, a list of acceptable items is posted on the front door. These include functioning, clean and gently used appliances, cookware, kitchenware, dishes and glassware (in excellent condition), sports equipment, bicycles, toys, games, baby equipment, children’s picture books, ornaments, home repair tools, gardening tools.

Unacceptable items include large appliances, air conditioners, refrigerators, TVs, monitors, construction debris, upholstered furniture, large furniture, bedding, clothing, books for adults, printers, faxes, semi-functional electronics, chipped or cracked dishes, plastic mugs/containers/dishes, skis, ski boots, stuffed toys, cribs, suitcases, anything really dirty.

Drop-offs during the hours when the shed is not open are not allowed.

The TILI Shed hours between April and October are Saturdays, 9 a.m. to Noon (Master Gardeners table is manned only on Saturdays), Wednesdays 2 to 4 p.m. located at the Gedney Recycling Yard, 87 Gedney Way, White Plains.

The Beautiful and Historic Good Counsel Campus Marks 125th Anniversary

By Mary Alice O’Brien, RDC

The beautiful green space Good Counsel campus at 52 North Broadway in White Plains celebrated its 125th Anniversary on April 26, the Feast of Our Lady of Good Counsel.

In the spring of 1880, the thoughts of the founders of the Sisters of the Divine Compassion, Mother Mary Veronica, RDC and Msgr. Thomas S. Preston turned to the question of a summer house where the Sisters and the children they cared for might enjoy a rest and a change of air from their New York City location. A place on 91st Street was considered but did not meet the expectation of Msgr. Preston. A Father Edwards and a Mr. O’Connor were asked to look for a place in Westchester, in the “real” country.

Msgr. Preston told Mother Veronica that they must look to acquire a place that would not only serve for the summer, but which would become the motherhouse and novitiate for the Sisters. The country would be far more ideal than the city. There would be opportunity for them to get out-of-doors and get exercise and fresh air. Such a place could also serve as setting for a school.

During April, Father Edwards and Mr. O’Connor investigated possibilities Westchester had to offer. After looking at various properties that were nice, but not quite right, they eventually found a fine place on Broadway (in White Plains) that had been built by Eugene T. Preudhomme and was now owned by John M. Tilford. Upon seeing the house both Edwards and O’Connor agreed immediately that they were perfectly suited to the Sisters’ needs. Arrangements were concluded on April 26, the Feast of Our Lady of Good Counsel, and they named the property for her, Good Counsel.

The history of the property and the growth of the congregation of the Sisters of the Divine Compassion is a compelling and uniquely Westchester story.
County Executive Again Pledges No Increase to Westchester Property Tax Levy

With a loud message that for the fifth year in a row, the Westchester County property tax levy will not increase in the next budget, County Executive Robert Astorino offered a positive outlook and added a few new initiatives of interest to residents and businesses during his State of the County address last week.

Astorino hailed a recent Second Circuit Court of Appeals decision which said actions by HUD to financially penalize the county were subject to judicial review, as a “major victory against an aggressive and overreaching federal government,” and a win for local zoning and home rule. The county remains on schedule in fulfilling the terms of the 2009 federal housing settlement agreement with currently 223 units occupied and 454 units with financing in place, Astorino explained.

Pleased by the new $25 million Playland agreement with New York-based Standard Amusements, Astorino said the proposed deal would secure the long-term future of Playland. Standard Amusements will invest $23 million in capital improvements, introduce new rides and attractions and make an up-front $2.25 million payment to the county and pay an annual fee of $300,000, that escalates each year.

Also on the economic front, Astorino explained that the County’s Industrial Development Agency (IDA) assisted on 16 economic development projects that generated more than $400 million in private investment. In the not-for-profit sector, the County’s Local Development Corporation (LDC) assisted on a number of projects that generated $129 million.

To attract new business to the County a satellite economic development office will open in May in Manhattan at 125 Park Avenue, right across from the entrance to Grand Central Station. “We are going to make Westchester County to New York City businesses,” Astorino said. “Our message is simple. To those companies in New York City looking to leave New York State, you need to take a look at Westchester."

Another new program is the County’s new fatherhood initiative designed to celebrate the critical role of the father, and help those in at-risk situations navigate and overcome potential barriers they may have to becoming effectively involved dads. Former New York Knicks all-star Allan Houston’s foundation will partner with the county in the initiative.

A new Safer Communities initiative with the development of a new mobile phone application called the Westchester Safety App. is expected to be available later this summer. The app will offer real-time traffic, weather and storm reports, and disaster preparedness tips via smart phones. The app is being developed by Interlecta, a Westchester-based IT company, in conjunction with the county’s Department of Public Safety. The download of the app will be free.

And coming in May, the county’s “A Job’s Waiting for You Training” program will get under way to match long-term unemployed workers with hard to fill jobs in health care such as MRI technicians through a training program that, upon successful completion, guarantees the trainee a job. The goal is to place 500 individuals in four years and ultimately expand the program beyond the health care field.

The County Board of Legislators chair Michael Kaplowitz (D-District 4) in his response to the County Executive asked that Astorino re-open a dialogue with HUD to finally put the “2009 housing settlement behind us.”

Kaplowitz also noted that Westchester County has a tremendous asset that is not being used. “On the campus of the Westchester Medical Center and New York Medical College are 60 acres of prime unused land that is owned by Westchester County. Legislators want to see this property developed in a smart and creative way that will not only provide an economic benefit for Westchester County but a real social benefit as well,” Kaplowitz said.

Kaplowitz also expounded on the quality of drinking water in the county. “For many years the county’s “water district one” has not been in technical compliance with some water quality standards established by the federal government. The Environmental Protection Agency began levying fines against the county but I’m happy to announce that the Board of Legislators, working with the County Attorney, successfully negotiated a resolution with the EPA to upgrade our water treatment facilities in water district one,” he said.

Kaplowitz also offered the establishment of an office of sustainability with an Energy Director. This could come before the BOL as early as its Monday evening meeting.

Armenian Genocide Service Calls for Acknowledgement by Turkish Government

were given to attendees. The Forget-Me-Not flower is the official emblem of the Armenian Genocid centennial celebration.

According to Armenian-genocide.org on April 24, 1915, the leaders and intellectuals of the Armenian communities in Ottoman Turkey were rounded up and massacred. From 1915 to 1923 more than 1.5 million Armenians were killed; two out of three Armenians living in Ottoman Turkey perished. The rest were banished from their homeland.

The Armenian population had inhabited this land for over 3,000 years. And, according to V. Rev. Archimandrite Eugene Pappas from Three Hierarchs Greek Orthodox Church, who as the primary speaker gave the homily, the Armenian nation was the first Christian nation.

Rev. Pappas emphasized the importance of Armenians in the diaspora to remember the genocide and like their Jewish brethren who suffered through the Holocaust to in-tone “Never again. Never again.”

“The Armenians were killed because they were Christian,” Rev. Pappas said. The Armenian Genocide set the tone for other brutalities and genocides of the 20th century.

“But they did not win,” Rev. Pappas explained, speaking directly to the children in the gathering. “They did not win because we are here. You are here. We are celebrating you, not the death of the martyrs.”

Congresswoman Nita Lowey presented a proclamation acknowledging the Armenian Genocide and stating that: “She is a co-sponsor of legislation to acknowledge the atrocity in full, calling for the United States to work toward equitable, constructive, stable, and durable Armenian/Turkish relations based on the Republic of Turkey’s full acknowledgement of the facts and ongoing consequences of the Armenian Genocide and a fair, just and comprehensive international resolution of this crime against humanity.”

Lowey emphasized that: “All good people must be vigilant to prevent hatred and dogma from destroying civilizations across the world.”

White Plains Mayor Thomas Roach also had a proclamation that he read in full.

“The Armenian Genocide represents a government slaughtering people that it should be there to protect. Unfortunately that is something we have seen too much of,” Roach said. He congratulated the Armenian people for keeping the memory alive for 100 years “so that we should never forget.”

Members of the White Plains Common Council who were present at the ceremony included Milagros Lecuona, Beth Smyada, Nadine Hunt-Robinson, and Dennis Krolian, a member of the St. Gregory congregation who was visibly moved by the support he received from his colleagues.

Earlier in the day, at an ecumenical service in Greenwich, CT, red carnations that were handed to all attendees were provided by Creative Flowers by Amodio’s of White Plains.

When what you love to do in your spare time becomes possible as your full-time occupation, that’s Kismet, and you know the result will be the fruit of pure passion.

The Twisted Branch Olive Oil & Tap Room just opened at 24 Broadway in Valhalla, and already the new store is getting a reputation as a “must visit destination.” Chefs from some of the more popular eateries in Westchester already have made the discovery and The Twisted Branch is on their regular shopping routes.

White Plains residents and brothers John Cherico and Richard Cozza and Richard’s wife Erika have partnered to put the new business together.

The idea for a specialty shop had been discussed among the partners for several years, but when in November 2014 it looked like they had the opportunity to finally make the jump – John was leaving the corporate world and Richard was moving on from his job in IT – they took the business plan to the fast track and opened the store in a little over four months.

The shop is full of delicious add-ons that experimented for years with different olive oil and balsamic vinegar recipes. He also knows what oils he prefers and where they come from.

The shop features oils and vinegars imported from Italy, Spain, Chile and Tunisia. The Twisted Branch works with a flavor infusing company based in California. Each product is created to exact specifications and bottled on site in Valhalla – where the products for sale carry the Twisted Branch name.

When traveling for his job in IT, Richard would often spend time in California and Seattle, WA. “Oil and vinegar tap rooms are quite popular on the West coast,” he explained. “I was already hooked on the concept and was shipping product back home for my personal use. That’s how I got involved in the network, which made it easy to set up the business so quickly. I had already done much of the work.”

Infused and flavored olive oils such as Basil, Blood orange, Sage & Onions, Tuscan Herb, Garlic Mushroom, Sundried Tomato and White Truffle, among others are on the menu.

There are many other flavor selections on the lists as well as gourmet wine vinegars and special flavors created for each season.

If you have no idea what you might like, The Twisted Branch has 100 percent biodegradable cups and spoons and bread cubes for sampling.

In fact, Richard says they will have Arthur Avenue bread delivered fresh each morning for customers to purchase.

On his Seattle trips, Richard also indulged in the gourmet coffee culture of the West Coast and the shop offers a signature small batch coffee. The Twisted Branch prides itself in working only with small, family owned plantations.

Coffee is for sale in biodegradable cups to sip from on the spot or bags to take home. Because Erika is a tea drinker master tea blends from Harney & Sons can be found on the shelves along with local honey from a bee farm in Connecticut – there’s a Killer Bee Hot Sauce – gourmet and flavored salts – there’s a Ghost Pepper salt – flavored cane sugars and hand blended spices.

Richard has been busy developing recipes which he will post on the store’s website at www.TheTwistedBranch.com where you will also find a complete selection of items for sale in the store as well as online. There will also be a blog for sharing taste experiences.

If you work or live in White Plains, The Twisted Branch will be a vendor at the White Plains Farmers Market every Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. beginning April 29.

The Twisted Branch is located at 24 Broadway, Valhalla, NY 10595; 914-437-8000. Store hours: Monday – Saturday 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., Sunday 12 to 6 p.m.
We fully support the step Chancellor Tisch has taken to provide districts with flexibility on the November 15 deadline. We recommend that the Regents go further and drop the November 15 deadline altogether and use September 1, 2016 as the deadline for school districts to fully implement new teacher and principal evaluation plans.

The law is clear that districts can submit plans for approval by November 15, 2015 or by September 1 of each subsequent year, i.e. September 2016. We know that it is unrealistic for school districts to be able to document and submit new teacher and principal evaluation procedures by November 15 when the regulations setting out the guidelines for the process are not required to be in place before June 30. Moreover, districts need to negotiate with their unions the teacher observation category of the evaluation system. It is impossible for districts to negotiate with the unions when teachers are away for the summer.

We urge the Regents to develop and adopt the regulations as scheduled by June 30 to ensure that districts have the most time possible to negotiate and submit evaluation plans to SED. If the Regents cannot meet the June 30 deadline, they must inform the Legislature as soon as possible so that the law can be amended.

The statutory language provides the Regents the ability to extend the deadline to September 1, 2016. We must take this opportunity to ensure that we give our districts the time needed to design fair, relevant and sustainable teacher and principal evaluation plans that respect professionalism and provide appropriate accountability and to ensure that critically needed state aid resources are not withheld from our schools and our children. Our teachers and students deserve nothing less.

More Development on the Corner from Hl

In the Believe It or Not Department, under “Other Matters” at the White Plains Planning Board meeting on April 21, 2015, the owner of the BP Gas Station at the corner of Westchester Ave. and S. Kensico Ave. wishes to reconfigure the gas station. He has purchased or plans to purchase the vacant lot next to the gas station. The lot contains the empty Seaberg’s frozen food store. He will reconfigure the site as a gas station plus convenience store with 12 parking spaces. There will be a 6-foot sign giving gas pricing. The convenience store may possibly have a fast food outlet like Dunkin’ Donuts. He had wanted a drive-through fast food outlet, but was persuaded not to pursue that.

This is one of the busiest, most confusing, and dangerous corners in the City, with dueling gas stations (a Mobil Gas Station and Mobil Mart across the street from the BP);

Cars attempting gas station entry cutting into lines of cars waiting to turn from S. Kensico onto Westchester Ave. and vice versa; a Container Store driveway entrance and exit; a bus stop and, across the street, a bus shelter for pedestrians; cars attempting a shortcut and traffic light avoidance by entering the other gas station on S. Kensico and exiting on Westchester Avenue going north; many cars making legal U-turns on Westchester Ave. and (next to the BP Gas Station on S. Kensico) a Splash Car Wash.

It was noted that the owner wanted the entrance to the proposed site modification to be on Westchester Ave. The Building Dept. changed that to a proposed entry on S. Kensico, with exit onto Westchester Avenue.

No decision was made for this redevelopment project.

Letter to the White Plains Common Council on Ensuring Developer Compliance

I urge all of you to visit and observe what immense environmental damage has been and is being done to the property on 800 North St. Only then will you apprehend what the city’s approval of the German School’s expansion plan has wrought. It should be a lesson to all of you to see how such an approval, viewed in the abstract and in the confines of meetings in city hall, can result in such environmental damage.

Very few of you were around in 1955/56 when the property on North Street, owned by the Ochs family, publishers of the New York Times, was sold to residential developers and to the White Plains Board of Education. The initial development of one family homes on what then became Maplemoor Lane, Homeside Lane, Willows Lane resulted in further street and home construction and one of those houses became our home in 1956.

However, in contrast to what has happened at 800 North St, those and subsequent developers made sure that the age-old, full grown, in some cases rare trees remained standing and placed the structures in such a way that the trees were not destroyed. Even now, so many years later, you can see how many beautiful old trees were left standing right up against the houses on each property, including ours. We have a 150-year-old oak tree at the back of our house. There would be more trees standing if they had not been destroyed by Sandy and another major storm some years ago. Nature does its share of destruction. We do not need manmade demolition.

You should keep this in mind when development proposals come before you with promises that trees and other environmental features will be carefully preserved. These were promises made when I attended many meetings during the German School approval process but who is there these days to make sure that compliance is taking place? We don’t even have a Planning Commissioner.

With all sorts of statements and promises being made by FASNYY (French American School of New York) about preservation – these actions taking place on North Street should make you aware that you have an obligation to be more than vigilant. Site visits during the approval process are meaningless if the resulting construction process is not compliant. You are the elected and appointed caretakers of the environment in White Plains and we have put our trust in you. It behooves you to make this visit in the next days.

~Carry Kyzivat, White Plains

Grand Larceny. On the afternoon of April 13, a report on a stolen wallet was made at police headquarters. The victim said that her wallet was stolen and she wished to document the incident. The victim said that she had driven to the Stop and Shop at 610 White Plains Road where she is employed. She reported that she parked the car in the store’s lot at about 7 a.m. and left at 3 p.m. when her shift was over. At this time, the victim reported that she realized she did not have her wallet with her, and remembered leaving her wallet in the car’s center console when she exited the vehicle. She was unable to remember if she locked the vehicle doors. The wallet and its contents were described for the report. All credit cards were cancelled. The report is for documentation purposes only.

Identity Theft. On the evening of April 13, police responded to The Sheraton Hotel at 600 White Plains Rd. for a report of identity theft. The victim, also a guest at the hotel, reported that an unauthorized charge of $4235.61 was made to his American Express Card. He said he was in town on a business trip and had checked into the Sheraton with his American Express Card at about 8:45 p.m. when he was helped at the front desk by a Sheraton Manager. He then went to his room. The hotel room phone rang at about 9 p.m. and he answered it. The victim reports that a male was on the line who said his name was “Philip” and he worked for the hotel and there had been a problem with the computer systems at the front desk and they needed to “re-validate his credit card information.” The victim said he would come down to the front desk to rectify the issue, but the male on the phone insisted that they could complete everything over the phone. The victim then proceeded to give his American Express card number to “Philip” over the phone. The victim said he became wary of the situation, ended the call and went down to the front desk. The Sheraton staff at the front desk said they did not know anything about needing the victim’s credit card information. The victim was informed that there was no one named “Philip” employed by the hotel, nor was there any reason for them to ask for his credit card info after the initial check-in. The victim began to search his credit card statement online, which showed a $4235.61 charge to a Lowes located in Georgia. The victim immediately called American Express to contest the charge and to cancel the card. Officers then spoke with staff at the front desk, who said that approximately five minutes after the victim had checked in, an outside call from a male party asked to be connected to his room. The hotel does not have caller ID and was unable to track that phone call. The report is for documentation purposes at this time.

Suspicious Incident. On the afternoon of April 14, officers were dispatched to 4 Warehouse Lane, Elmsford. The caller reported he had seen four males wearing dark hooded sweatshirts walk into a wooded area near the northwest corner of the Pepperidge Farms building loading dock area. Upon arrival police made contact with the caller, who said he had seen the four males parked in the southeast corner of the loading dock area in an older model Audi sedan, gray in color, with dark tinted windows and white rear taillights. He then observed the males walk from the vehicle and enter a wooded area that was in close proximity. One of the males was carrying what the caller believed was a picnic style blanket rolled up on his shoulder. The men stayed for about one hour and then left. Police checked the wooded area and observed a hammock strung across two trees and several empty Heineken beer bottles. The Hammock had a stripped pattern similar to a picnic style blanket. Report filed for documentation purposes only.

Suspicious Incident. On April 14 police were advised of a suspicious incident. The target of the incident said he placed an ad on Craigslist to sell a snow blower for $100. On March 26, 2015 he received a text message from an individual named “Fred” who showed interest in the snow blower and remained in contact in order to purchase the item. During the next two weeks, the target received over 20 text messages from “Fred” from two different phone numbers. On April 12, 2015 the target received two money orders totaling $1,974 ($987 each), which were sent to him by “Fred” as payment for the snow blower. The target became suspicious when he received the money orders, but knew something was wrong when “Fred” advised him to send the difference from his personal account. The money orders were dated prior to the initial contact about the snow blower purchase and were made out to someone other than “Fred.” The text message phone numbers were traced to Meridian, MS and Jonesville, NY. A check of the address where the money orders were sent from found it to be fictitious. The target reported that he did not send “Fred” the snow blower nor did he send any cash, check or money orders for the balance, but was concerned that “Fred” had his address. The incident was documented in the event something else should occur.

Possession of Stolen Property. On the morning of April 14, police responded to a call of a larceny in progress at the CVS on N. Central Avenue. Comsec advised that two females were inside the CVS and had filed the store with assorted beauty products in an unknown direction of travel. An employee of the store said he observed the two females get into a BMW SUV and flee in an unknown direction. While police were canvassing the area, they observed a black BMW on N. Central Ave. at Alexander Avenue with the rear door partially opened. A traffic stop was conducted. On approaching the vehicle police asked the driver why she was stopped at the intersection with her rear door partially opened. The driver replied: “My cousin jumped out because she dropped her phone in the Best Buy parking lot, and she was looking for it.” The interior of the vehicle had several bags with assorted beauty products. When asked about the products the driver became apprehensive and replied that they belonged to her cousin. Police were able to locate the other female, who had another bag full of CVS beauty products stuffed under a vehicle in front of Best Buy. Both females were identified as the individuals who had stolen the merchandise from CVS, valuing $228.87. Further investigation revealed the women were also in possession of $503.33 in stolen merchandise from Sally Beauty Supply. The women were placed under arrest and transported to police headquarters for processing. Several beauty items from Bath & Body Works were also recovered.

Grand Larceny. On April 14 the Vice President of Retail Operations for Patriot National Bank walked into police headquarters to report a larceny from the Patriot Bank at 495 S. Central Ave. The bank representative said she had been to the Patriot Bank in Greenburgh to interview a teller who was suspected of assisting with a larceny from an elderly couple’s account. The couple had made a report to the Norwalk Police Dept. after they received a bank statement indicating there had been four separate withdrawals from their savings account totaling $26,351.25. The bank representative said the bank had reimbursed the account holders for the total amount of funds that were stolen from them, and that she now wished to press charges against the suspect she believes was behind the larcenies. She said that on (3/6/15) and (3/10/15) a black male made withdrawals and (3/17/15) and (3/30/15) a black female made withdrawals. All withdrawals were made at the suspect’s branch, and the suspect was present for all for transactions, and on two of the occasions the suspect was the teller that completed the transactions. The bank representative said there was no way that the suspect followed proper procedure because if a party comes into a branch for a withdrawal they must show proper ID and the teller must confirm that ID with a picture they have on file. The actual account holders are a white male and female in their 80s, and the parties that made the withdrawals were a black male and female in their 30s. The bank representative further said that until these four transactions, the victims’ account had been inactive since May 2014. The suspect has denied any involvement.

Living With Other Noisemakers: Liking or Lumping It

Lately I’ve been made aware that I’m probably a noisy person. Not to myself so much, but maybe to others. More and more, if I’m watching TV in one room and my wife is in another, she’ll say mine is too loud.

Just the other day, when I had driven into my property, which houses my PR business, and jumped out of the car without turning off the motor to unlock the place for my painters who are redecorating my offices, the realization really struck home. One of the painters who’s worked for me for a long time looked at me askance and said, “Knowing the kind of man you are, I never would have thought you’d play loud music in your car!” I guess I was busted.

Yes, I like loud music, whether in my car or at home. Not rock or country, but Broadway show tunes that get my heart pumping. And it doesn’t do the trick for me with earphones. The sound has to fill the room I’m in and reverberate off the walls to fully embrace me.

For more than 40 years I’ve lived on a property with no homes near me, but now that I’m also a condo owner with neighbors across and down the hall, I guess my reverberating days are over if I’m to be a considerate neighbor. Just last week, a gentleman across the hall asked if the piano playing he heard was coming from my unit. Oh, no, I thought! I’m only able to play the American Songbook, and I am so rusty after a 30-year absence from the keyboard that I’m sure Cole Porter and Richard Rodgers are rolling over in their graves.

Sheepishly, I admitted I was tinkering on the keys and apologized that I’m not a more accomplished musician. Since that time, I haven’t been playing late and have been using the soft pedal when I do.

Most of us who live in Westchester or Putnam have some kind of proximity to a neighbor who is subject to noise we make as we share property lines or walls of apartments or condominiums. That can create problems, sometimes big ones.

When I moved into my first apartment in Brooklyn Heights, it was new; cheap construction and the floor above me had no carpeting. Living there was a single mother who must have worn spiked heels every waking moment and had a child who could only have been possessed by a demon.

In the days before cell phones and when everyone had no fear of being listed, I looked up her number and called her so frequently to complain about the noise that I can still remember her name and exchange. Then, one day, her tough boyfriend came banging on my door, which I refused to open, calling me names, the least offensive of which was “a neurotic,” threatening me serious bodily harm. That’s when I decided to skip out on my lease and leave the building for a more solid pre-war building with better insulation from sound.

When my wife and I married and shared our first apartment in another new building, there was an older gentleman who lived in the apartment right off the lobby who loved to share his life with the building’s other residents. He must have been involved with entertainment in the 1950s, because he would leave his door open and sing songs of that period without accompaniment. Only in New York, right? His favorite was “A White Sport Coat and a Pink Carnation.” Whenever my wife and I want to refer to the intrusion of one person’s lifestyle, aka “noise,” into another’s, all we have to do is sing that song as code and it speaks volumes.

When we moved to the country, the vagaries of close proximity were lessened for sensitive ears and far different. We have lawn mowers, leaf blowers, and the biggest offender, about which most of us complain, barking dogs, especially if they bark too long unattended. Most towns have in their codes the acceptable length of time an owner can have a dog bark before a neighbor can ask that a warning be issued by the code enforcement officer.

For those of us who share condo or apartment walls, we have the same issues that those in the city have. The other night at a dinner given by a social club I belong to, I discussed this subject with a fellow member who told me that he shares walls on either side of his unit with other retired people.

“I know most things about their lifestyles,” he said, “like when the nice woman on one side of me can’t sleep and I hear her TV go on in the middle of the night. We just adjust.”

Failing all else, there are always earplugs.

Dave & Buster’s Opens New Sports Bar and Game Complex

By Jerry Eimbinder

A spacious Dave & Buster’s food and entertainment center opened last week at Post Road Plaza, a shopping mall in Pelham Manor. The complex is located directly behind the mall’s Fairway Market.

Occupying 39,500 square-feet, the new facility has two American fare dining rooms, an arcade-style game center, a sports bar and a three-table billiards room for use on a first-come, first-served basis. It can accommodate private events for up to 1,200.

Both dining rooms serve the same menus and have wait staff service, but one has hostess-seating service for 88 while the other requires patrons to seat themselves and has a capacity of 160.

The game center contains 170 skill-challenging games. Plastic card tickets purchased at the reception desk track the scoring of points electronically. Accumulated points can be redeemed at the Winners’ Circle for Apple products, Xbox games, sports memorabilia, t-shirts, stuffed animals, electric guitars and other merchandise.

Most of the games are high-tech but basketball players can earn points by shooting hoops. Games include Transformers Human Alliance, Mach Storm and Kung Fu Panda Dojo Mojo.

With the simultaneous opening by Dave & Buster’s in Pelham Manor and another in Euless, Tex., the chain increases its establishments to 75.

The dishes at Dave & Buster’s in Pelham Manor range from tasty comfort items to 12-ounce New York steaks, “Surf & Turf” (bacon-wrapped sirloin medallions with grilled shrimp) and shrimp and lobster Alfredo.

There is a wide variety of drinks, including beer and other alcoholic beverages, milk shakes, lemonade, juices, soft drinks and Red Bull energy drinks. There are free refills for fountain sodas, coffee and tea.

Innovative burgers are a big draw at Dave & Buster’s. The menu also includes sandwiches, pretzel dogs, barbecued ribs, grilled mango-citrus Cajun shrimp on skewers, pasta, barbecued chicken and mac and cheese with chicken and bacon. The Mountain O’ Nachos is very popular as a snack or appetizer. A children’s menu is also available.

The parent company is introducing two new burgers at this time. One is a half-pounder called the Maker’s Mark BBQ Burger. Priced at $12.79, it comes piled high with smoky Ancho pulled pork and caramelized onions topped with two slices of American cheese. Smothered with the house’s own Maker’s Mark tangy bourbon sauce, the burger is served with lettuce, tomato, onions and pickles on a toasted brioche bun.

Also newly introduced is a half-pound, buffalo wing burger. Its crispy chicken tenders are accompanied by bleu cheese, frizzled onion strings and celery ($12.29).

Among the favorites on the Legendary Burger menu are the South Philly Steak Burger with thinly sliced steak ($12.99), and Dave’s Double Cheeseburger with double meat and double cheese on a toasted brioche bun and French fries ($11.79). This is probably the best selling of all of Dave & Buster’s burgers.

Salads are plentiful and include chopped Thai chicken ($10.29), Caesar with chicken ($9.99), sweet apple pecan with chicken ($10.99) and “The Lawnmower,” a medley of chicken, garden vegetables, boiled eggs, Romaine and green lettuce, bacon bits and bleu cheese crumbles ($12.99).

Desserts abound and include chocolate fondue, cheesecake, chocolate cake and the Brookie Sundae Tower — a warm, gooey combination of a giant chocolate brownie and a chocolate chip cookie topped with vanilla ice cream and chocolate and caramel sauces ($8.79).

Happy Hour runs from 4:30 to 7 p.m. and returns from 10 p.m. to closing at the bar with a 50 percent discount for cocktails. However, the discount offer is not extended to Dave & Buster’s signature-cocktail version of Long Island Iced Tea, called “D&B TNTea.”

Anyone who finishes drinking a D&B TNTea can take the glass home as a souvenir,” said special events manager Beatriz Peneda.

This classic drink is a blend of Absolute vodka, Tanqueray gin, Bacardi Superior rum, Grand Marnie and Coca-Cola. Cocktails include the Original CoronaRita and the Miami Ice Snow Cone, one of a variety of snow cones, and a strawberry watermelon margarita made with strawberry-flavored ice cubes.

The Original CoronaRita has seven ounces of Corona made with Sauza Blue 100 percent blue agave tequila, DeKuyper Triple Sec and a squeeze of lime. The Miami Ice Snow Cone combines coconut vodka, coconut rum and lemonade with strawberry Bacardi premium mixer.

For munchers, a package deal called The 5:15 is offered. Priced at $19.99, it consists of five Buffalo wings, five quesadilla wedges, five pretzel dogs, five crispy fried shrimp and a stack of potato chips.

General manager Danny Eurell is still hiring; the completed staff is expected to exceed 300. Hours of operation are 11 a.m. to midnight seven days a week.

Dave & Buster’s is located in the Post Road Plaza off of Boston Post Road (Route 1). The address is 881 Pelham Parkway in Pelham Manor, a short distance from Exit 7 off the Hutchison River Parkway. There is free parking. For more information, call 914-380-8500.

Crusaders Cage Tigers, 2-1, in 12th Annual Joe McAvoy City Rivalry Challenge

By Albert Coqueran

It was like Déjà vu in the fifth inning of the 12th Annual Joe McAvoy City Rivalry Challenge, which pitted White Plains High School against Stepinac High School, on Saturday, April 25, at White Plains High School.

Back on April 1, in the Tigers Home Opener, in the bottom of the seventh inning with Mahopac High School leading 4-3, Tigers catcher Andy Garcia, while representing the tying run, tried to take two bases on a sacrifice bunt and was thrown out at third base. The Tigers were defeated, 4-3.

Then 21 days later, in the Joe McAvoy City Challenge, Tigers Steven Rand hit a leadoff single with the score tied 1-1 in the fifth inning and later stole second base to put White Plains in position to tie the game with one out.

But Rand, as Tigers Head Coach Marcel Galligani emphasized, “tried to invent something” and took too big a lead from second base. Crusaders relief pitcher Austin Mammola stepped off the rubber and caught Rand in a rundown. Rand in a rundown.

What is more devastating for the Tigers was that their starting pitcher Daniel Lotito hit a single to right-field, after Ricardo Mendez grounded out, which could have scored Rand and tied the game.

White Plains lost to Stepinac, 2-1, in this year’s Joe McAvoy City Rivalry Challenge, in a game that was indicative of their 2015 season.

The Tigers, believe it or not, are 0-8, to start the 2015 varsity high school baseball season. Mistakes, errors and lack of offense have determined their record this year, as the same faltering influenced the outcome of the Joe McAvoy City Challenge.

The Tigers were in position to win a traditional game for prides sake, as City of White Plains braging rights were on the line, but they blundered to another loss.

Galligani was quite aware that even at 0-8, a win against city rival Stepinac could have put some bounce back in the step of his players going into the second half of the season. “I know for a fact winning this game could have motivated my team. But did they know it. I am not quite sure they did. The effort is there and there is talent. It is growing pains and we are going to get better,” Galligani said.

Nonetheless, even while using every trick up his sleeve, Galligani could not overcome three costly errors, poor base running and six men left on base that the Tigers amassed in this game.

Galligani used three successive bunt attempts in the third inning to score the Tigers only run in the game. Leadoff hitter Rand began the inning with a bunt and then Mendez was hit by a pitch attempting to bunt. Rand scored on a bunt by the next batter Lotito, while Stepinac left home plate unguarded trying to field Lotito’s bunt.

Tigers starting pitcher Lotito not only hit well in the game, while going 2-for-2 with a walk, he pitched good enough to win but sustained the loss. Stepinac scored both their runs on untimely errors by the Tigers.

The Tigers junior throw a complete game with only four hits, no earned runs, eight strikeouts, no walks and two hit batters. “Daniel pitched great. He pitched without question the best baseball game we pitched this year. That was a performance that deserved a win,” said Galligani.

In contrast to the Tigers’ season, across the city on Mamaroneck Avenue, Stepinac is in the midst of an 8-2, winning season. Before, they sustained a 5-1 loss to Mt. St. Michael, on April 23; the Crusaders had won six straight games.

The Crusaders pitching is steady, as proven by the three pitchers who took the mound in the McAvoy Challenge. Starting pitcher Daniel Meaney threw four innings, relinquishing four hits, one run, one walk and six strikeouts.

Mammola relieved Meaney in the fifth inning to hold the Tigers down with two hits, no runs and a pick-off. The Crusaders ace pitcher Steven Boscia, who is 3-0 with two saves on the season, came in to close the game with a one-two-three inning with one strikeout.

“It was a well pitched game on both sides, 2-1, one run ballgame, typically Stepinac versus White Plains rivalry game and we are happy to get the win,” said Crusaders Head Coach Pat Duffy, who won his 197th career-game with the win over the Tigers in the Joe McAvoy Challenge.

Joe McAvoy is forever present at his namesake tournament. He stood behind the backstop for the entire game in support of the Tigers. McAvoy was the Tigers Head Baseball Coach for 18 years (1975-85). He also coached junior varsity soccer for 14 years and varsity soccer for four years.

McAvoy is also a heralded educator at WPHS, having taught at the high school for 37 years. He recently returned to WPHS, as a substitute teacher. “I will always be grateful to be remembered in this way. I cannot thank Marcel Galligani and the White Plains High School administration for continuing this tournament in my name,” said McAvoy.
The 82nd Annual Haggerty Awards Held at the Westchester Marriott

By Albert Coqueran

The National Invitation Tournament and Metropolitan Basketball Writers Association held their 82nd Annual Haggerty Awards Dinner at the Westchester Marriott, in Tarrytown, on Wednesday, April 22.

The Haggerty Awards are named after Lt. Frank Haggerty who was an outstanding high school and college athlete and the first graduate from Chaminade High School and St. John's University to die in military service in World War II.

The Haggerty Awards are the oldest college basketball awards of their kind and honor Division I, II and III college athletes throughout the New York City/Metropolitan area each year.

The Haggerty Award, which is presented to the All Metropolitan Basketball Writers Men's College Athlete of the Year was awarded to Sir'Dominic Pointer of St. John's University.

Pointer was also named the Big East Co-Defensive Player of the Year. The 6'-6" Red Storm swingman averaged 13.7 points, 7.7 rebounds and two steals, while blocking 2.5 shots this year.

The All Met Division One Women's Player of the Year was Ka-Deidre Simmons from Seton Hall University. Simmons averaged 17 points, 5.7 assists this season. Simmons set the Pirates school-record for assists in a season while totaling 194 assists. Simmons is Seton Hall's All Time Leader in assists (562) and is their second All-Time Leading Scorer with 1,717 points.

Seton Hall was well represented at the All Met Writers Awards this year, as Pirates Women's Head Coach Anthony Bozzella was voted the Maggie Dixon Division One Women's Coach of the Year. Bozzella was also named the Big East Coach of the Year this season, after leading the Pirates to their first NCAA Tournament bid since 1995.

The All Met Writers Division One Peter A. Carlesimo Men's Coaches of the Year honors were shared by St. Francis University Head Coach Glenn Braica and New Jersey Institute of Technology Head Coach Jim Engles.

Former Dobbs Ferry High School basketball star Eric Paschall shared the All Met Co-Rookie of the Year honors with Seton Hall's Angel Delgado. Paschall was also selected as the Atlantic 10 Conference Rookie of the Year this season. Paschall, who played for Head Coach Tom Pecora at Fordham University, has transferred to Villanova University, upon the firing of Pecora at the end of last season.

"I really did not expect to win the awards, so it was hard work the entire year which makes me really enjoy the awards," said Paschall. "I was surprised to hear Coach Pecora was not coming back, all I can say is, I was surprised!"

"Ms. College Basketball" Linda Bruno, was presented a NIT/All Met Writers Distinguished Service Award for her longtime commitment to NCAA college basketball. Jon Halpert, who served as

Herman held the reigns of Stepinac Varsity Head Basketball Coach for two years, after the resignation of longtime Head Coach Tim Philp. Herman compiled a 20-32 record in his two years at the helm. Before his hiring as the new Stepinac Varsity Head Basketball Coach, Massaroni served three years (2012-2015), as the Crusaders Varsity B Basketball Head Coach. Massaroni was the first Varsity B Basketball Head Coach in the program's history, as Stepinac only takes to make our basketball program successful. He brings knowledge and a great work ethic to the sidelines of our great basketball program. His love for basketball and his passion for the game will be contagious to our basketball program," stated Stepinac Athletic Director O'Donnell.
